FIVE POWER NAVAL PACT TO BE SIGNED TUESDAY

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

We doubt whether collectors of ancient art get as much of a thrill out of their collections as some of our young baseball fans.

There is a certain candy company that includes the pictures of Pacific Coast baseball players with their chocolate bars.

As a result, every boy in the neighborhood has started collecting these pictures.

You can see the youth of Richmond congregating on or around the sandlots trading pictures.

One boy we know is collecting pictures of the Oakland baseball club. So far he has eight pictures.

Yesterday, he proudly walked into the house and displayed a picture of Louie Martin, Oakland outfielder.

"This is very, very rare," he said in a manner befitting a collector who had found a missing masterpiece.

"I had to work hard for this one. I traded five Seals for Martin and I got a bargain at that."

The results are that the schoolboys are pastoring their dads for nickels to buy this candy... not because they like the sweets, but because they want the pictures.

Additional time has been granted to the city of Richmond for the census enumeration.

It is the duty of every citizen of this city to see that his or her name is included in the official count.

Richmond will be judged by the census and we want our city where it should be... well up in the list.

Enumerators report that a majority of the citizens have given full co-operation. Two or three minor cases were reported where the enumerators, almost had to use force to get the names.

The most flagrant case was reported in the eastern section of the city. The family of a local leading citizen refused to come to the door time after time when the enumerator called.

However, the situation was finally adjusted to the satisfaction of all.

Many citizens feel that the questions asked by the enumerators are rather personal, to say the least.

One should remember that the answers to these questions will be kept confidential.

If you haven't been included in the census, call Richmond 383 right away.

FINAL MEET WILL BE HELD

LONDON, April 16.—UP.—Delegates of the five powers officially were summoned today to sign their naval agreement next Tuesday morning at St. James's Palace.

The final preliminary session, marking the end of three months of negotiations, will begin at 10:30 a. m. on that day. The first part of the meeting will be devoted to statements by delegation chiefs and the second part to actual signing of the treaty.

All five powers will sign the preamble and general clauses. Great Britain, the United States and Japan will attach their signatures to a strict limitation agreement. France and Italy will pledge themselves to continue efforts to solve their difficulties.

Pact Drafted
It was believed that drafting of the treaty would be completed tomorrow, permitting the delegates to cable the text for home approval.

The safeguarding clause, according to best information, permits Great Britain, the United States and Japan to increase their naval construction program if the security of any of them is threatened by rival fleets. Thus Britain, if she felt herself endangered by large French and Italian fleets, would merely notify the United States and Japan she intended to construct such-and-such vessels.

Mrs. Crawford was killed instantly and Crawford died a week after the crash. Olsen is at liberty on $5000 bail.

CENSUS WILL END HERE SATURDAY

The census will end for Richmond Saturday night at midnight, according to a message received yesterday from Edward A. Dinkel, of Suisun, census supervisor for this district.

It is expected that the additional time will give every enumerator in the city an opportunity to complete the check.

There are a number of districts within the city limits that have not been completed.

Boy Scouts are aiding in checking the work, doing their bit to see that every citizen is counted in the enrollment.

A message was broadcast yesterday from the city hall that every person who has not been counted in the census should call Richmond 383 immediately. An enumerator will be sent to the address immediately.

The figures here are below the 21,000 mark, but belief was expressed last night that with the additional time the final figures should be over this mark.

BIDS OPENED FOR DREDGING ELLIS SLOUGH

Contracts for the dredging of Ellis Slough are expected to be awarded tomorrow when property owners meet at 10:15 o'clock to study bids.

Bids for the work were opened by E. A. Hoffman, city engineer yesterday morning.

The bid of the San Francisco Bridge company was reported to have been the lowest, 15.5 cents per cubic yard or $262,124.65 for the project. The bid came within the maximum estimate of 16 cents.

Other bidders were: Hydraulic Dredging company, 15.75 cents per cubic yard, or $273,973.50.

American Dredging company 16.19 cents per cubic yard, or $273,973.50.

It is proposed to dredge a channel 4000 feet long and 300 feet wide with a depth of 30 feet from the northerly terminal of Richmond inner harbor, and to build a turning basin at the end. Only a portion of the channel will be 300 feet wide, as the Procter and Gamble company failed to enter the agreement with the other property owners. As a result the channel in front of the Procter and Gamble site will be only 200 feet wide to a distance of some 800 feet.

Several hundred acres of industrial lands will be filled in during the dredging, creating valuable factory sites.

The property owners interested in the project are: San Francisco Bridge company, Santa Fe railroad company, Duncanson and Harrelson Enterprise Foundry company, Richmond Navigation and Improvement company, Richmond Investment company and A. Banzoff.

DEATH TOLL IN BLAZE MOUNTS

ILOILO, P. I., April 17.—Thursday—UP—Casualties and damage from the worst fire in the history of the Philippine Islands continued to mount today and it was feared that Cadiz, a town six miles from the source of the blaze, would also be destroyed.

Nearly 48 hours had passed since the conflagration started in the Insular Lumber company in Sagay municipality but accurate reports from Fabrica, where 800 houses were destroyed, were still lacking.

Fabrica is only about 35 miles from here and many of the refugees were coming to Iloilo. They were so excited that they told conflicting stories.

From reliable sources, however, it was determined that at least four persons had been killed. Estimates were made that damage to property had exceeded $5,000,000, twice as much as the figure set 24 hours ago.

At least 12,000 persons were homeless.

These facts represented the greatest disaster of the Philippine Islands except from typhoons. The Red Cross was preparing to aid the homeless, and attempts were being made to restore communication lines into the devastated area.

Inhabitants of Cadiz, six miles from Fabrica, were abandoning their homes without attempting to stave off the flames because all agreed the fire could not be controlled until it had burned itself out or winds had shifted.

The Insular lumber company was destroyed by fire six years ago, also during Holy Week. It was founded by Former Senator Fassett Elmira of New York.

To "get even" with District Attorney A. B. Tinning and Sheriff R. R. Veale for being charged with possession of liquor in 1926, Howard L. Royston, formerly of Richmond, led Tinning and Veale a 1000-mile goose chase, according to press dispatches received last evening.

Royston, according to the dispatches, pretended that he knew the "inside" on the holdup of the Southern Pacific train near Pittsburg last year.

As a result both Tinning and Veale went to Canon City, Colo., where Royston is awaiting execution as the result of the part he is alleged to have taken in the robbery of the Lamar, Colo. bank, and the murder of the president of the firm.

Royston was questioned by both Tinning and Veale. Yesterday the prisoner declared that "I first gave them the impression that I knew something about them, but I didn't."

"I left them with that impression to square up for being 'framed' on a booze deal six years ago."

EX-SHERIFF FREED ON BAIL

OAKLAND, April 16.—Burton F. Becker, ousted sheriff of Alameda county, with his former deputy J. L. Davis and Cromwell L. Ormsby, former Oakland attorney, was today indicted by the Alameda County Grand Jury, charged with accepting protection money from Chinese lotteries in Emeryville.

The indictment, voted shortly after the jury had heard the evidence of witnesses, was the same one the grand jury has refused to return when it previously listened to testimony against Becker, Davis and Ormsby.

A true bill was returned against Ormsby at that time, which resulted in District Attorney Earl Warren laying the case before Superior Judge Fred V. Wood last Monday, and a court order for the Grand Jury to re-consider the situation.

Becker Arrested
Shortly after the indictment, Becker walked into the same office he had occupied as sheriff, and submitted to arrest. When released on $6000 bail, he refused to make any comment.

Ormsby, who was in the room when the verdict was turned, was released.

FRIEDLANDER IN OIL PROBE

LOS ANGELES April 17.—(UP)—A new story of asserted bribery in California political offices came out of the county grand jury room here today in a true bill charging that bribes had changed hands on Spring street, financial center of Los Angeles.

Jacob Friedlander, former state corporation commissioner, Charles Crawford, politician, S. C. Lewis, former president of the collapsed Julian Petroleum corporation and four "John Does" were indicted on charges of conspiracy to offer give and receive bribes.

The true bills resulted from the testimony of J. H. Roth, broker and former associate of C. C. Julian, promoter of the oil company he sold before it crashed. Roth said that $250,000 changed hands when Lewis and Crawford forced brokers to pay as high as $5,000 for permits to set stock, and that some of the money had reached Friedlander.

Bond was set at $5,000 each and arraignment for Thursday. C. C. Lewis, however, is in a federal penitentiary on a mail fraud conviction.

It was recalled that Morris Levine, newspaperman, and Leonine Johnson, former secretary to Lewis, were indicted recently on a charge of attempting to extort money from Crawford, Friedlander and others by threatening to print newspaper revelations concerning them.

A Martyred Husband

THE world is full of martyred husbands, the cynical man will tell you, so why read about him? Perhaps it is because in fiction they quite frequently win the sympathy they fail to get in real life. A clever author can create the right atmosphere for them. But in "The Asking Price" Miss Helen Hull fails to win for Oliver Gilbert the sympathy he no doubt deserves. Not that Miss Hull is not a capable writer. Her pen is most adroit. But Oliver Gilbert allows himself to be blackened by his wife's umbrage.

Oliver Gilbert is pictured as an aesthetic idealist who marries a domestic utilitarian. Audrey Peters loved this youthful poet whom she married, but in a fit of jealousy urged her to trample her impractical husband into a shape more to her desire. Quite early in their married life she tells her husband that she has destroyed the love poem he had written about her. Her act throws Gilbert into the depths of despair.

"The floor of the hall downstairs rose up and smothered his feet so that he staggered back against the post. He ground his side on the sharp edge, as if physical pain might stir the dullness in which his senses swam. A moment of age rocked him in which he felt himself crawl up the stairs again until his fingers closed around that steel white throat, silencing the incredible, pelling words. Then slowly he began to pass among the Roberts, his own thoughts Audrey thrust into an infinitesimal figure, harder than rock, glazed in the fire of her own selfishness. He could never reach her. He would be a disappointed one, looking, he recalled the hours in the hotel room when he had dreamed through his love for her. What had he been so sure of, that if he could find a symbol true for him, it would be true for her? He thought he would like to sleep, but his throat gaped dry and empty of sound. He would be patient, and she would learn."

The quotation is given so that the reader may appreciate the splendid descriptive passages found in this book.

Oliver remains patient too long for the reader. One grows impatient waiting for some definite action on the part of Oliver to free himself from his wife's domination. She hears him three children and one woman him sinking lower and lower into an apathetic existence. He is absorbed in his academic life. He writes his dull textbooks. Then suddenly comes his abnegation. He is called to New York for a summer term at a New York university. He falls in love with Kate Turner, who is able to drag him out of his "into phosphorescent water." Then, quite too suddenly, and quite too submissively, the liaison is ended and Oliver is back again in the quiet college town, carrying on his duties as professor. Every once in a while he offers mild resentment against the practical things of life that antagonize the visionary. He resists the academic action against unconventional Linston, who was forced to leave college because of his radical ideas.

But the chain that are tied around him drag too heavily for him. He cannot raise himself. It is not until his children reach maturity that he begins to see the light better. He takes particular interest in his third child, Oliver, in whom he recognizes his potential self. He helps to guide him and wins her confidence until the moment comes when she decides that she wants to become a doctor. Then he seems to offer resistance. Finally, one day he uncovers the long-lost love poem which Audrey had declared she had destroyed. The sight of this stirs up the memory of what might have been and Oliver goes to his daughter and says:

"Don't worry about that damned school. Hang on to what you want yourself. Whether I like it or not doesn't matter. You hear?" There is a great deal of satisfaction to be found in this story of a man's struggle against worldly things. "The Asking Price" is published by Coward McCann.

An Englishman Is Annoyed

WILLIAM GERHARDI, author of "Pending Heaven," published by Harpers, gave vent to his feelings before returning to England. "There is, I have come to realize," he declared on sailing, "a certain type prevalent in every country—and the United States is no exception—who is simply not my cup of tea. The righteous, matronly type of woman and the stodgy self-satisfied man of business. I cannot breathe in their company. They bother me, and I vanish into air, trying to read me. My books can mean nothing to them. I address myself to men and women of a certain pliability of mind, a simplicity of nature, who can feel the humor and poignancy in the casual order of our common life. As for the stodgy and the self-righteous—no! They owe it to me not to read my books. They really mustn't! I beg of them."

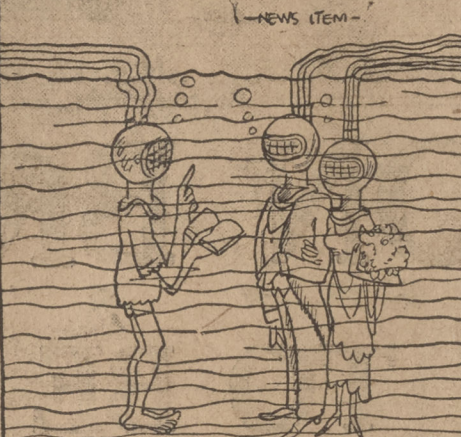

Now do you feel any desire to read this book?

A Story of Beethoven's Life
HILE "Eroica" is essentially a book for the lover of "Missa Solemnis" or the "Ninth Symphony," nevertheless it offers a sound for great appeal to the general reading public because this novel,

FORMAL GOWNS FLAUNT TIERS AND TRAINS

WIDE black mesh fashions the effective evening gown at left, with a five-tiered skirt ending in a train. White velvet gardenias at the high waistline offer a contrasting note. Orange crepe chiffon fashions the second frock, which has four graduated ruffles extending across the front and joining the U-shaped ruffled panel at the back which forms a train. Orange velvet flowers are posed at the waist. Chantreuse taffeta, printed in a colorful flowered pattern, fashions the long evening wrap at right. Collar and knee band are of sable. The skirt trails in uneven points below the knee.

based on the life of Ludwig von Beethoven, has been written by a man who is sympathetically in tune with the great master, Samuel Chotzinoff has written his story in the minor key.

Beethoven was born amongst unconventional surroundings. His father was a heavy drinker. Life was cruel to him. His love affairs brought him no balm. He was subject to the criticisms of ungrateful contemporaries. And then to heighten his sorrow the bitter irony of fate deprived the great musician of his sense of hearing. His will, written at a period of his life, when he was very ill, expresses the deep sadness of the man:

"Born with an ardent, lively temperament, even susceptible to the delusions of society, I was compelled early to isolate myself, to live in loneliness. When at times I tried to forget all this, oh, how harshly was I repulsed by the doubly sad experience of my bad hearing."

For me there can be no recreation in the society of my fellows, refined intercourse, mutual exchange of thought. I may mix in society only at the command of necessity.

As if this great affliction to one who could so marvelously produce sound for others, was not enough of a cross, his nephew, for whom he had a great affection, proved an additional sorrow. He spent his days in extravagant living, and finally disgraced his uncle by an attempt at suicide.

Mr. Chotzinoff introduces the reader to the Beethoven who first appeared in Bonn in the cultural home of Madame von Breuning. He carries him through the exciting days when Count Waldstein made it possible for Beethoven to go to Vienna to study under Haydn, for whom Beethoven had a natural distrust.

"The C Minor must be very good since he dislikes it—the finicky old ass," Beethoven growled at one time. According to the author, Beethoven's friendship with The Immortal Beloved, who is called Countess Julie Guicciardi, had a great influence on his compositions. "Your love makes me at once the happiest and the unhappiest of men.... Love demands everything and that very justly. Thus it is with me so far as you are concerned and you with me."

"Eroica," a novel based on von Beethoven's life, by Samuel Chotzinoff, is published by Simon & Schuster.

Concerning Charlemagne

CHARLEMAGNE has been modernized by Charles Edward Russell in a biography. "The old boy," he says, "was a peach, a corker, and as modern as they make them. He originated the modern university, initiated Rhine wine, made possible the most popular of Wagner's operas, remade commerce, grabbed education by the hair, and brought it ashore when it was going down for the third time. He started the first rational government in Europe after the Roman debacle, was a bulldog at fighting, and could do about everything except avoid falling in love."

Mr. Russell's biography of Charlemagne is published by Houghton Mifflin.

Household Inventions

A new ironing board is intended to be hinged to the under side of beds that fold out of sight into recesses in hotel or apartment rooms.

Rubber boots for pet dogs to prevent them tracking mud into houses have been invented.

A French inventor has coated a watch dial with luminous paint bright enough to illuminate keyholes in the dark and to enable a person to select a key from his ring.

Moth balls or other insect repellents in solid form are carried inside a perforated bar that features a new garment hanger.

The World's Window

By Pierre Van Passen

PARIS, April.

Prehistoric Man

In January certain archaeologists operating in the neighborhood of Felpling brought to light the remains of a prehistoric man. This was followed by the inevitable declaration that the region around the former Chinese capital must have been the cradle of the human race. This makes cradle No. 5. If we are not mistaken, the features of the primitive home have already been reconstituted around the skeleton by a qualified savant. The result, judging from photographs, is not very flattering. Somehow these discoveries of primitive men are never very pleasant. They are liable to make us feel as some of those eternally young stage and cinema stars must feel when they look back at pictures of themselves thirty or forty years ago, in attitudes and hats which are altogether lamentable in our day and generation. And there is, to be sure, nothing seductive or Valentinian in the Peeping man who is 400,000 years old. No more than there was in his youthful colleague who was found in the Neanderthal. If he isn't a monkey he resembles that beast to a remarkable degree. The find has been the cause of an animated debate in an English university. At which stage of human evolution, it has been asked, can it be said that man's soul becomes immortal? Bishops and other high church authorities have been drawn into the discussion. The Bishop of Manchester says that everything which is generous and sincere and loyal survives and attains immortality. This is a most consoling thought, and perfectly in harmony with what was once expressed by a Christian philosopher who said that he would be sorely disappointed if, upon entering the gates of heaven, he would not be greeted by the joyous bark of his faithful dog.

Margueritte's Triumph

Victor Margueritte is having his revenge at last. He is the French novelist who was condemned without having been heard, scrapped from the lists of the Legion of Honor like Zola once was, and exactly for the same reason. His detractors saw in his first book nothing but an obscene picturization of the vice and base instincts of a repulsive humanity. In truth he struck out at prejudices, as an uncompromising moralist and a clear-seeing sociologist. In spite of the hue and cry raised against him Margueritte continued his work, calmly and serenely, living on a deserted piece of the North Sea coast, far away from the rumpus and turmoil of Paris. His new book, "Chan du Berger," which is but a logical continuation of his previous works, shows us the other side of the brutally pessimistic picture that he first drew. Here are regenerated human beings who have trampled under foot all the hideous prejudices of the past. They have found back the joy of life. This joy always existed, but people must discover it and bring it to light from the hidden recesses of their own being. The critics are now saying that woman owes a lot to M. Margueritte. He has braved a terrible storm, but he has continued the fight for woman's liberation. He is now called a precursor, a forerunner

Diplomacy in The Home

YOUNG wife, listen! Of course your chief desire is to have a happy home, but you are getting far away from that if you are going to be so easily offended.

When hubby said "I tell you mother used to make the dandiest baked pork and beans. It makes me hungry to think of them," that did not imply yours were not good. He ate yours, did he not? And is it not just possible his mother's recipe is superior to the one you follow? When he said one day "Gee! Your mother certainly knows how to make good clam chowder," you immediately asked your mother for her recipe. Now, why not ask his mother for her pork and beans recipe and forget all about your hurt feelings—those are foolish anyway. Rest assured hubby would be astounded if he knew how you misconstrued his perfectly natural remark.

Would it not be a good idea to get some pointers from his mother on the favorite foods of friend husband? You know the old saying about how to reach a man's heart? That is worthy trying.

Renovating Faded Linoleum

YOU can freshen up that printed linoleum that has the pattern nearly all worn off. If it requires any patching, do this before making the renovations.
Paint the rug in the usual way and when dry apply two coats of varnish, allowing one to dry thoroughly before applying the next. Contrasting borders will give the linoleum the resemblance of a rug. One housewife produced a much admired floor covering by using stencils to form a design in corner squares in black on a gray ground, while rest of border was green and the centre gray.
Linoleum thus treated will give service for several years more.

CHEMISTRY OF TYPES

By DR. C. A. ESTERBERG

The human being, as well as the plant, is built by attracting to itself certain elements from food, air and water. Certain types attract certain elements. In turn, the dominant elements composing the body, acting and reacting much as they act elsewhere in nature, determine the physical and mental type of the individual. Responsibility for the body's choice of these elements rests principally upon the action and interaction of the glands of internal secretion the dominant glands in each case being discussed under the particular type.

Calcium Type

The principal function of calcium in the body is bone making and cell vitalization. Calcium types reflect the qualities of calcium—enduring, firm, hard.

Calcium people are very tall, long of limb, and angular in build. Typical calcium types are awkward, slow and deliberate, but they are the people who bend nature's powerful and primitive forces to their ends. Their constructive energy finds expression when working with steel or iron or elemental forces of any kind.

Psychologically they are positive, silent, determined, stubborn, serious, truthful and earnest. Emergencies find them ready to serve. Fortunate is the person who has calcium friends—there are none more loyal. They have all the enduring and sterling qualities of the pioneer and can be depended upon when integrity of purpose and hard work is demanded.

Calcium types abhor frills and soft chiffons. They prefer severely tailored garments and common sense styles in shoes and clothes. Typical examples of calcium types include Abraham Lincoln, Henry Ford and Woodrow Wilson.

Disease Tendencies

The calcium in the body calls principally, the heavier and more solid parts of food. Farm milk, for instance, they utilize the calcium, silicon, iron and other salts, ignoring the water, fat and sugar contents. Disease tendencies, therefore, include the hardening processes as represented by hardening of the arteries, stiff joints, rheumatism, paralysis, etc.

Diet

The calcium in the body calls for calcium outside the body so these people tend to be over-fond of foods which tend to aggravate their disease tendencies. For this reason, when they indulge in the following foods they should be careful to include an abundance of the corrective diet.

Food to avoid or limit—Milk, cottage cheese, Swiss cheese, bran, walnuts, halibut, cabbage, egg yolk, apricots and rhubarb.

Corrective diet includes: Celery, carrots, spinach, cauliflower, asparagus, okra, cucumbers, tomatoes, dandelions, watercress, lemons, grapefruit, cherries, peaches, strawberries, gooseberries, herb teas of peppermint or parsley or watergreen.

Meats—lamb is considered best.

Glands Involved

The chief glands of internal secretion associated with calcium metabolism are the parathyroids, the thyroid and the pituitary. Diseases of any of these glands may increase susceptibility to the diseases common to the calcium type.

In next week's Health Column we will discuss the Carbon Type giving dietetic hints and suggestions.

ARMY PLANES TO "SHOOT" ECLIPSE

SACRAMENTO, April 16.—UP—Army air planes will leisurely soar at a height of 20,000 feet above the Sacramento valley on the morning of April 28, waiting for first signs of the approaching shadow of the moon as it speeds across the earth in a total eclipse.

Full cooperation of the Army Air Corps astronomical observatory in photographing the rare event, visible over northern California on that date, was promised today by Brigadier General William E. Gillmore, in command of the Army Air Corps field maneuvers being held here.

Army planes with motion picture photographers will wait at this high altitude and when the first shadow of the moon appears the cameras will start recording its progress across the earth.

Flight Planned

Starting at a point several miles out in the Pacific ocean, the path leads northeasterly across California passing near Napa, Marysville and Grass Valley. The planes will be located between Marysville and Grass Valley.

The width of the moon's shadow will be approximately 3000 feet passing across the earth at 30 miles an hour.

Other cameramen will focus on the sun, recording passing of the moon across its diameter.

While preparations for this important event are being formulated, participants in the war game here were awaiting "zero hour" tomorrow, when two new war tactics are to be tested.

To Attack Town

One is the use of zones of security, while the other is establishing rendezvous by means of radio.

Bombardment planes will head up the Sacramento valley in the morning, ostensibly to attack Willows, 75 miles north of Sacramento. They know that pursuit planes of the 95th squadron are hovering in the vicinity of the Marysville-Buttes.

Comprising the zone of security, where the bombers may speed if threatened by an enemy.

The enemy for the occasion will be the first pursuit group, which will attempt to intercept the bombers on the trip.

Another group of bombers will head south during the afternoon for Stockton, while pursuit planes remain in a position some miles distant, awaiting for a radio call that will summon them to assistance of the bombers, who may be attacked by certain pursuit planes designated as the enemy.

300 Delegates To Visit Local Christian Church

Over 300 delegates from Christian Church societies in the bay region will visit the First Christian church of Richmond next week. A banquet in honor of the visitors will be served by the Organized Women's society.

"THE KISS" TO BE SHOWN AT THEATRE

Greta Garbo never permits her audiences to grow weary of any particular characterization. Playing a spirited English girl in "Woman of Affairs" a romantic debutante in "The Single Standard," Miss Garbo now gives a splendid portrayal of a French wife in "The Kiss," which opens today at the Fox California theatre.

In providing Miss Garbo with this glamorous French drama, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has afforded her an opportunity for a powerful role of tragic motivation.

Miss Garbo has never been seen to greater advantage and it is to be expected that her portrayal of the role of Irene Guarry will be considered one of the finest performances of her career. As the woman unhappily wed to a jealous husband, she offers a striking performance which works up to a climax in which she murders her husband and consequently faces the guillotine. Conrad Nagel, as her old lover, exists to save her life. Jacques Feyder, the noted French director, wrote and screened the powerful story, employing a novel mechanistic technique. His screen treatment has an European flavor which contributes to the continental atmosphere of the play.

Low Ayres, a newcomer in pictures, gives a fine characterization of the young lover. Holmes Herbert is his understanding parent and Anders Randolph plays the part of the jealous husband.

The picture has musical and sound synchronization. On the same bill is a thrilling, exciting adventure entitled "Up the Congo" and then for good measure there is a Laurel and Hardy comedy, entitled "In the Hoosegow."

Telephone Co. Extends Death Benefits Plan

Extension of its system of employee death benefits, to include more beneficiaries and larger payments, was announced yesterday by Manager G. R. Calvert of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company.

In extending death benefits, the company gives many more employees protection for their beneficiaries in case of death due to sickness. Employees of two years' service now come within the benefits, as compared with five years previously.

The changes also provide that, after death of a retired pensioned employee, pension payments may be continued in certain cases for a limited time to his wife or dependent relative.

The company's plan for employees' pensions and benefits has been in effect 17 years. It provides for service and disability pensions, accident and sickness disability benefits, and sickness and accident death benefits. A similar plan is in use in the Bell System throughout the United States.

After 20 years' service men may retire on pension at 60 and women at 55, at their own request. After 25 years' service men may be retired on pension at 55 and women at 50. After 30 years' service, any employee may be retired on pension at the discretion of the company.

As announced in 1925 all employees are retired automatically at the age of 65. This rule becomes effective this year and applies to every employee without exception, to the president as well as every other worker.

The amount of pension varies with the length of service of the employee and is based on the average of the highest 10 years' pay multiplied by the number of years of service. For example, an employee of 30 years' service would receive 30 percent of the average 10 years' pay.

Other ways by which the company aids its 35,000 employees on the Pacific coast include the installment purchase of stock on favorable terms; and a plan for life insurance on partial payments deducted from salary.

B. F. BECKER, TWO OTHERS INDICTED

Bail for Davis was set at $1000 which he expected to raise shortly after court adjournment. Davis is at present standing trial in Superior Judge Edward W. Eng's court on other graft charges.

Becker and Davis were both called before the court to testify, but both refused on grounds that testimony might tend to incriminate them. Ormsby testified, and made a sweeping denial of the charges.

Jury Hears Witness
The indictment was returned on practically the same testimony that had been presented to the Grand Jury before.

Fred Smith, former San Leandro automobile dealer, and admitted "graft" collector, took the stand and testified that he had received $4200 from Ormsby, which he had turned over to Becker on the reported arrangements that the former sheriff was to tip off all raids on the Chinese lotteries.

He declared that several times Becker had telephoned him to notify the gamblers to close up.

On his previous appearance before the Grand Jury, Becker admitted taking money from Smith, but asserted it was only $2700 and that he supposed it had come from unidentified friends to help make up a deficit in his campaign funds. He also declared he had given part of it to William H. Parker, then his under-sheriff, who recently resigned as Oakland city commissioner.

P. O. Guinness, Los Angeles attorney, and uncle of Smith, reiterated former testimony of "visits paid to Smith when he was in hiding, by Parker and Becker. He also declared that Becker had given Smith $1000 with advice to "get out of the country" as District Attorney Warren was making extensive efforts to arrest him.

Ernest C. Norman, the first to reveal the paving graft, and Mrs. Smith, wife of the "collector" also testified and reiterated their previous charges of graft and corruption.

COUNTY ROAD EXPENDITURES INCREASE

An analysis of the County road expenditures prepared by the Contra Costa county division of the California Taxpayer's Association, showed that during 1928 and 1929, the cost of road maintenance was the second largest expenditure in the county.

The following analysis of the expenditures was prepared by the division:

In 1928-1929 there was spent on highways and bridges, $571,095, or 13 per cent of the total county expenditures. This amount is second only to the amount spent in the county for schools.

The highway and bridges expenditures have shown an increase in annual total expenditure of $176,751 over the last ten years, or an increase of approximately 45 per cent.

The largest amount for roads was spent in Supervisor Oscar Olsson's district of $177,982.26, or 31.1 per cent of the total expenditure. District No. 1, Supervisor Long, $100,076.96; District No. 2, Supervisor Olsson, $177,982.26; District No. 3, Supervisor Hayden, $113,939.58; District No. 4, Supervisor Buchanan, $51,166.12; District No. 5, Supervisor Trembath, $122,930.73; total $571,095.65.

Capital outlays were somewhat more evenly distributed than the maintenance expenditures.

District No. 1, $29,720; District No. 2, $49,181.67; District No. 3, $24,476.80; District No. 4, $30,756.08; District No. 5, $44,619.41; total $178,753.96.

The capital outlays were made for these purposes:

Rights of way, $25,220; other rights of way, $4,853.31; acquisition and improvement district No. 1, $4,500; new equipment, $6,289.15; new construction, $137,891.50; total, $178,753.96.

The maintenance of roads required $32,342 or 68.7 per cent of the total expenditures. Capital outlays amounted to $178,754, or but 31.3 per cent of the total.

The high costs of maintenance are ascribed by County Surveyor R. R. Arnold to the fact that "as a suburban county with only 22 miles of state highway, our county roads must carry an increasing huge load of traffic originating at and destined to points outside of the county. This condition naturally results in a higher per capita cost than obtains in purely urban or rural counties."

Al St. John Faces Court

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—UP—Al St. John, film comedian who once teamed with Fatty Arbuckle, appeared in Superior Court again today because he was behind in alimony payments, a matter which once caused him to be sent to the county rock pile.

When cited before Judge Burnell a month ago, he was behind $1500 in his $45 a week payments to his first wife, Mrs. Lillian St. John. Today, he still was 12 weeks behind, but he found Judge Walter Guerin more lenient and, having explained that he expected film work shortly after a long layoff, was given two weeks to make up the deficit.

MANY GAME BIRDS BRED IN STATE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16.—An increased interest in propagation of pheasants in captivity under license from state authorities, is manifest from the recent reports to the Division of Fish and Game of the department of natural resources. The breeders of game birds are licensed by the state conservation body and are required to make an annual report of their activities.

A check of the returns from licenses granted during the year 1929 discloses that 329 operators in the state of California are engaged in the breeding of game birds for profit. According to the statement of J. S. Hunter, chief in charge of the Bureau of Game Refuges for the division of fish and game, and who is directly in charge of the licensing of game breeders, a marked increase is shown from year to year in the number of applicants for license.

Quail, pheasants and ducks are the species most commonly reared in captivity by the breeders. At the end of the 1929 season, owners throughout the state had on hand 4240 quail, 5,132 pheasants and 1049 ducks. The quail were representative of several species including the native mountain and valley varieties, as well as many exotic forms. Pheasants in the possession of breeders were chiefly ringnecks, but many of the rarer varieties were also owned by the fanciers.

Most of the owners of ducks confined their attentions to the mallard, with a total of 739 birds of that species being reported but there were many of the more migratory species represented. Breeders reported that 75 of the beautiful wood ducks, once so abundant in California, were being held as breeding stock.

In conjunction with the state game farms, the private breeders of game birds are doing a great work in the restocking of game covers. A majority of the game species sold by the breeders go to landowners, who liberate them on their premises for the purpose of restocking out-shot covers.

BOW, ARROW, HUNTS BEARS

SEATTLE, April 16.—UP—George Hay DuBarry, Seattle piano dealer and asserted descendant of French royalty, sailed tonight for Sitka, to hunt Kodiak bears, with a bow and arrow and a bluff.

It seems that Jules Cataran, whom DuBarry will join on the expedition, has hunted big kidikas for years and has had real success in out-growing them.

"Our plan of attack is simple," said DuBarry. "When Cataran finds one, he will jump in the air and yell. While the bear and he are growling at each other, I will creep up and send an arrow thru the animal's heart."

"The bears are really bluffers and want you to know how mean they are," Cataran tells me that he easily outbluffs them."

DuBarry is said to be an expert with a bow and arrow. The bears are unique to the Kodiak island group off the coast of Alaska.

Boys At Play Find Dead Man

SEATTLE, April 16.—UP—Three boys at play discovered a fully clothed skeleton in a wooded ravine near Lake Union today.

Although a hasty examination gave no clue to identity of the man, police indicated there was a possibility that it might be the skeleton of James Eugene Bassett, scion of a prominent Minneapolis family, who disappeared a year and a half ago.

Decastor Earl Mayer, now serving a life term in Walla Walla state prison as an habitual criminal, was suspected of the slaying of Bassett.

The coroner's office said the body had been in the ravine at least 18 months. A gold tooth and clothing were being examined for means of identification.

CARNERA FIGHT INVESTIGATION CONCLUDED

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16. — (UP)—Preliminary investigations by the California Athletic Commission of Primo Carnera's bout with Leon Chevalier, negro heavyweight, at Oakland Monday night were concluded here late today.

Charles Traung, commissioner in the northern California district, said he would report his findings to his associates at a special meeting of the commission to be held here Monday.

Traung frowned upon an offer from Leon See, one of Carnera's managers, for a rematch with Chevalier, the proceeds of such a match to go to charity. He said See's proposal would not care for fans who paid "five dollars and three dollars and two dollars" on Monday night, and were dissatisfied in the manner in which the bout ended.

Carnera was credited with a knockout victory when Bob Perry, a minor second for Chevalier, tossed a towel into the ring in the sixth round while Chevalier was on his feet and exchanging blows with the Italian giant.

"I believe Perry's act was inspired by someone," Traung said. "I do not think Perry took it on himself to do it."

Traung had suggested that Carnera and Chevalier meet again with fans holding the stubs from Monday's fight being admitted free and any additional funds to be given to charity. See replied that to do this would be an admission that Carnera was guilty of an irregularity Monday night, and he would only agree to a rematch if all persons attending the next contest would pay regular admission prices.

"We must protect the spectators who were at Oakland," Mr. Traung replied. "The result did not set very well on their chest."

BOXING BOARD WILL MEET

PORTLAND, Ore., April 17. — (UP)—The Portland boxing commission will meet Thursday morning to determine whether or not Primo Carnera will be allowed to appear here April 22 in a 10-round bout against Sam Baker, Los Angeles negro.

The outcome of the investigation of the Carnera-Chevalier fight at Oakland Monday night and the return of Frank Loneragon, chairman of the Portland boxing commission, will be awaited before a final decision is made.

SONS DEFEAT CLOTHIERS IN AMERICAN LEGION JUNIOR LOOP

The Native Sons took the McRacken Clothiers into camp with a score of 7 to 2 in the principal contest on yesterday's American Legion Junior baseball league card.

Both the Native Sons and the McRacken athletes played a brand of baseball yesterday that branded them as two very likely competitors for final honors in local American Legion competition.

Fred DeCourten hurled for the Native Sons, allowing six hits, walking eight and fanning 12 of the McRacken batters. Chris Santella received for the winners. Avilla occupied the box for the losers, allowing seven hits, fanning five batters and walking five. Aussez and Follett did the receiving for the Clothiers.

In yesterday's National League competition, the Giants defeated the El Cerrito Giants 8 to 4, and the Corey Garage nine gained a 17 to 0 victory over the El Cerrito Bears.

Bear Nine To Play U. S. C. At Home Today

BERKELEY, April 16. — Still leading in the California baseball association pennant race, the University of California nine will take on two games this week to wind up their 1930 season.

The Bears will meet Southern California at Berkeley this afternoon in the third game of the series. The fate of the California club seems to hinge on this game; the Trojans are in second place, only a few points behind the Bears in the percentage column, and a loss to them would be disastrous. The only two games the Bears have lost in 13 starts have been to U. S. C.

Following the game with the Trojans the Bears will seek to take their third game of the season from Stanford. Although the California nine has already won the series with two victories at Berkeley, the Palo Alto game should be a thriller. The first two contests were both won by one-run margins.

Who today's pitcher will be is yet unknown, since Coach Clinton Evans will undoubtedly save Norm Horner for the Stanford game.

Gar Wood Sets Record

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., April 16. — UP—Gar Wood sent his Moss America VII down Indian creek at 66.25 miles per hour today and immediately applied to have his former world mark, 91.123 M. P. H. officially renovated.

Otis Porter, official timer for the American Power Boat association, was absent because of illness, but stop-watches clocked two measured mile runs, one north and south, at 37.4-10 seconds each.

BEAR TRACKMEN PREPARE FOR "BIG" MEET

BERKELEY, April 16. — The University of California track team and its veteran coach, Walter Christie, has begun preparations for the last test of the regular season, the "Big Meet" at Stanford next Saturday.

The Bears showed considerable strength in taking second and third places last week against the Olympic club, and as a result Christie and his men are going about their business with new confidence. Although they took but three first places, the Blue and Gold athletes gathered in ten of the possible fourteen second places, in all track events but the low hurdles, and in three field events, javelin, pole vault and shot put.

By coincidence an equal number of Bears garnered third place in five track and field events.

Due to heavy rains over the week end, California oval was under padlocks yesterday to allow the soggy track to dry and the Bear athletes enjoyed an extra day of rest after the strenuous week-end.

The name of Bill Barlow, the sprinter, was the sole addition to the injury list in Saturday's meet. Running the first lap of the relay, he pulled a muscle and will Saturday. He showed considerable promise this year, his first year of varsity sprinting.

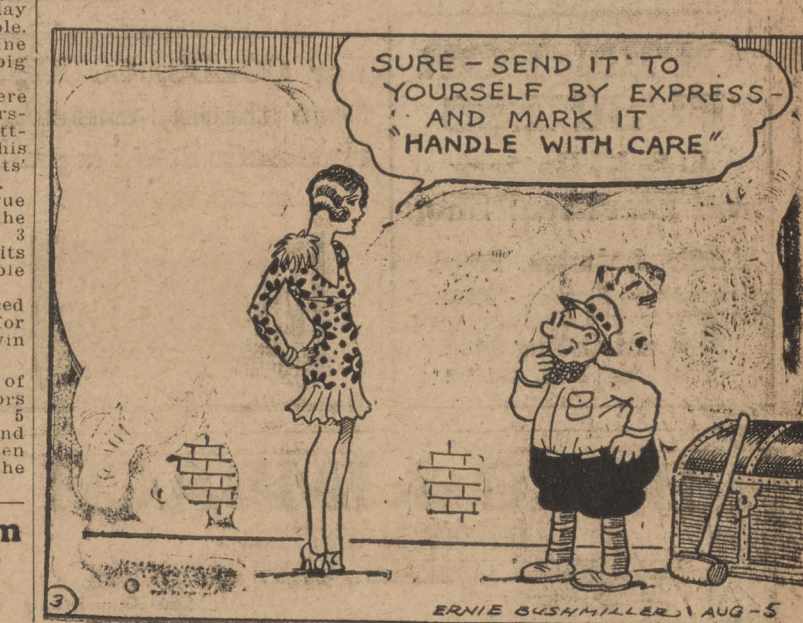

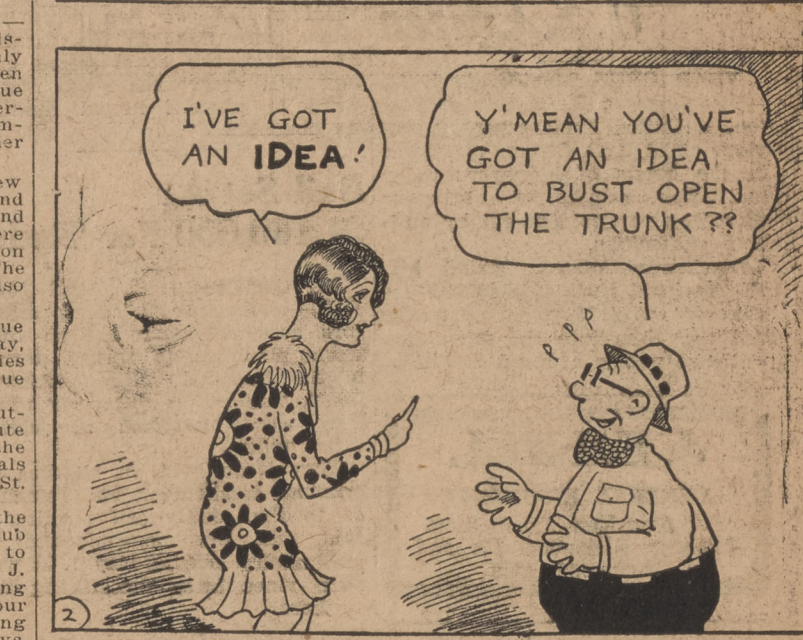

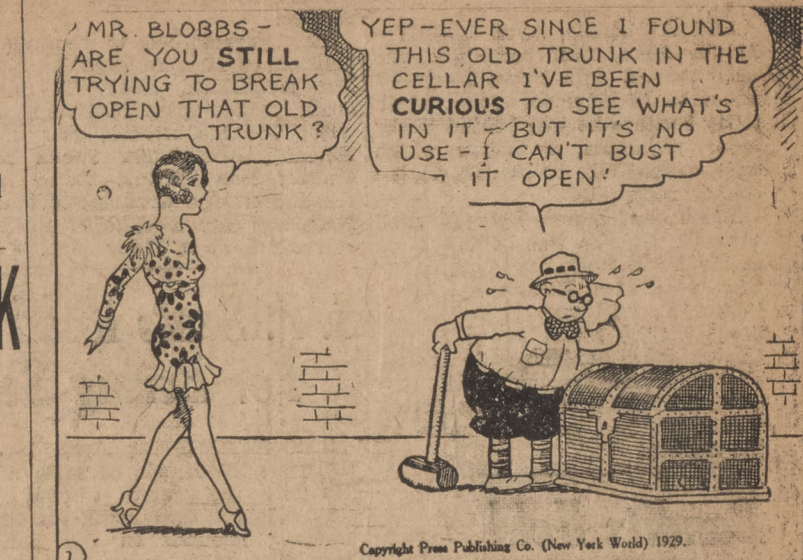

Fred DeBerry, who broke a small blood vessel in his hand in the Washington meet, was out on the field Saturday with the hand heavily taped, trying out the discs. He may round into form before the week is out.

Captain Alfonso Pogolotti steadily but slowly reaching his peak, should run the greatest race of his career Saturday. The Bear hurdler failed to show well last year due to an ankle injury, but he has turned in some fast time this season. He has threatened to do the lows in 24 flat, and may shave his time in the high barriers to record time or close to it before he hangs up his spikes.

weight, will arrive in New York May 3 to start training for his heavyweight championship fight with Jack Sharkey at Yankee stadium, June 12.

3 NEW YORK TEAMS IDLE FOR DAY

NEW YORK, April 16. — (UP)—Major league schedules were disrupted by rain today and only three games were played. The opening of the International League season at Newark, Baltimore, Jersey City and Reading was completely washed out by the weather men.

All three of the greater New York teams—Yankees, Giants and Robins—were idle. For the second straight time the White Sox were prevented from opening the season against the Indians at Chicago. The Browns-Tigers game at Detroit also was rained out.

As a result of the National League games played in the west today, the New York Giants and Phillies tied for the National League lead.

With George Fisher, rookie outfielder obtained in the last minute trade by the Cardinals, playing the star role, the St. Louis Cardinals massacred the Chicago Cubs at St. Louis 13 to 3.

Fisher, who played with the Buffalo International League club last season, and who failed to make an impression on John J. McGraw in the spring training season at San Antonio, made four hits in four times at bat, making eight hits for him in two days. Fisher drove in four runs today with three singles and a double.

Home runs accounted for four of Washington's runs and the senators nosed out the Boston Red Sox, 2 to 1. Sam West hit a homer and Ossie Bleuge hit one with two men on base. Irving Hadley held the Red Sox to six hits.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

SYNOPSIS

David Wade sails secretly from New Guinea, where O'Shane had robbed him, with O'Shane's wife in name, Stella Blackney. Her plight had awakened his pity. O'Shane was to claim her on her mother's death, and she loathed and feared O'Shane. On the island of Motogara they trade in copra with the natives. Stella has come to love Wade and fears the half-caste girl, Moira, may win him away, seeing she is not free to marry him herself. They accede to Moira's dying father's request to take the girl to live with them. Stella fears the girl and is jealous of her youthful, seductive charms.

theirs would be a hiding-place no longer.

"I am a little afraid, David," said Stella. "Just a little, you know." She looked round to make sure Moira was not about.

He linked his arm in hers. "It is most unlikely that they have ever heard of us. Samora is a long way from Tema, and there is no regular communication between the two places. We will be merely a Mr. and Mrs. Wade, just as we are to Moira. As for O'Shane, I'll bet they don't know such a person exists."

"But O'Shane may have been to Tema. He is not a man to give up easily, as I told you before. He will be looking for us, looking every where, sparing neither time nor money. It is very probable he has been to Tema."

"And what if he has?" He regarded her meditatively. "I thought you had got past being afraid of him. You told me you had."

"Yes, I know," she looked for a moment at the cutter and the trail its wake laid on the sea.

"In any case, I will protect you from him," David put in. "You know that, don't you?" There was definiteness in his tone, the definiteness of a chivalrous gallant. She thought of the first time they had attempted allaying any fears she might have had; and she loved him more than ever for it.

"But it is not him personally that I am afraid of," she said. "Then what is it?"

"If he has been to Tema the people there will know all about us. He will be sure to have told them. In that case the cutter's crew will learn it from them, and when they come back Moira will hear it from them in turn."

He pressed her arm against his side reassuringly. "You are still worried about Moira finding out, are you? I don't think you need be. I really don't. Moira wouldn't care. She is not that sort. There is nothing narrow about her. You must know that by this time. The knowledge that we are—or not married wouldn't make the slightest difference to her. You needn't worry about that," he added, and left her, to attend to a string of coconut-laden villagers.

All Stella's old fear and anxieties came creeping back. She was certain, as she was certain of anything, that discovery of David's unwedded state would make all the difference in the world to Moira. She fought down her fears. It was impossible, she told herself, that O'Shane had been to Tema. Even if he had, she would find means of silencing the crew.

With the determination to silence Dolob's tongue, she made all the which would not be a very difficult task—she looked again at the cutter, now a fleck of white on the blue wideness of the sea. She had a sentimental regard for the craft. Without it she could never have eschewed O'Shane and the horror he meant for her. Neither would she have experienced the great, abiding, and disturbing love that had come to her. The cutter had been the means of giving her the most tremendous experience of her life; and witnessing its departure was like witnessing the departure of an old and valued friend. If necessity she waved a hand to it; and to her fancy it seemed that the white fleck dipped in reply.

David calculated that the craft would return in a week. "Three days to reach Tema, a day to unload and fill up with the goods and rations, and three days to get back," he calculated, as they sat at lunch. "In my letter to the storekeeper I told him to get her away as quickly as he could. Natives have no idea of time, and they might easily spend a month at the settlement. If they are very long away, we are going to be short of trading goods."

"And the pearling will have to stop too," said Moira, "for my stores are also down to vanishing point. And that will be a pity, now that the weather is here, and looks like lasting awhile." And she fell to discussing the prices they were likely to obtain for the pearl-shell they had sent away, talking of weights, and quantities, and sizes, of "macre," "sheen," and "chicken-shell," and other technicalities in a most business-like and matter-of-fact way. Very accomplished and civilized did she look as she sat there, keen, full-blooded and intensely alive.

Once it was at the pearling-bed, whither Stella and David had accompanied her one morning to watch the "swimming divers" at work. The villagers were extraordinarily adept. From the one side slipped overside, turned in the water as easily as a fish might turn, swam down rather than dived, and stayed on the sea-floor a seemingly incredible time before coming up with the pearl-shell he had found. Indeed, one stayed down so long that Stella guessed a fear that maybe something had happened to him.

above her agreement. She would then proceed to build and the United States and Japan could follow suit.

According to American sources, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson told the chief Japanese delegate that the United States had consented not to lay down the last three 8-inch cruisers allowed her until 1933, 1934 and 1935, respectively, because it was impracticable to lay them down sooner and that the same condition existed with regard to the smaller cruisers.

Important Move
This development was regarded as important, because the Japanese wished to know whether the United States would build all the 180,000 tons of 8-inch gun cruisers allowed her or would build only 5,000 tons and concentrate on the building of many more smaller cruisers.

Great Britain's awaited "white paper," dealing with the conference, was issued today.

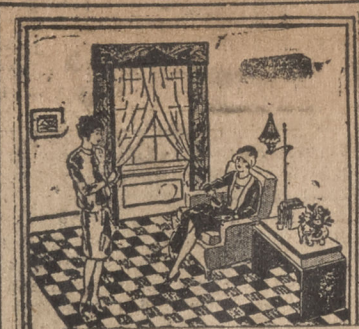

The United States, if she decides to build up to 180,000 tons in heavy cruisers, undertakes to complete not more than 15 vessels of this type before 1936, thus meeting in part Japan's demand for an increase of her auxiliary ship ratio.

Complete agreement was reached by all five powers, the White Paper said, not to lay down any of the replacement battleships of 35,000 tons which they were entitled to build under the Washington treaty. However, France and Italy reserve the right to build up to their battleship tonnage quotas under that treaty.

RADIO MERGER WILL FACE PROBE

WASHINGTON, April 16. — (UP)

Formation of a new giant radio organization, combining the radio manufacturing interests of the General Electric and Westinghouse Electric company with the Radio Corporation of America, has added another important industrial merger today to the list under scrutiny by the justice department.

Promising an immediate, searching inquiry, Attorney General Mitchell said the government was cognizant of the prospective new merger, and had taken an interest in learning whether it would violate the anti-trust laws.

Mitchell's announcement was preceded by a sharp attack on the "$6,000,000,000 radio trust" by the Radio Protective association, who charged the justice department with negligence in not heretofore prosecuting the Radio corporation as a monopoly in restraint of trade.

"New Trust"

"The newest reorganization of 'the radio trust' the association said, 'as a challenge to the justice department, to the federal radio commission and to congress.'"

Demanding prosecution of this new merger, the association also charged that the "radio trust" is seeking to monopolize "every line of radio communication, broadcasting, manufacture, television and even the talking movies." Similar views were expressed in the senate by Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, who chided the department for failure to prosecute sooner.

For more than a year the justice department's anti-trust division, under John Lord O'Brien, has been investigating monopoly charges against the Radio Corporation of America.

New Bill

The senate is now considering a bill by Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, to create a new power and radio commission with more drastic regulatory power than is now held.

Investigation of the new radio merger is only one of a list of recent gigantic new combinations in the world of business that have been subjected to the appraising eye of the federal government.

Recently, suit was instituted in St. Louis against the Vacuum Oil and Standard Oil of New York. Inquiry has been ordered into the Bethlehem Steel-Youngstown Steel and tube merger.

David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation, issued a statement tonight describing the new merger in which he said his company has arranged to handle the engineering and manufacturing facilities and plants of the General Electric and Westinghouse companies used in making radio sets, tubes and other equipment. Increased efficiencies made possible by this arrangement will reduce the cost of radio sets to the public, Sarnoff predicted. Sarnoff called on President Hoover today but he said the merger was not discussed.
